

Parachute Activities

Go Fleas, Go!

- The children have to hold all the edges of the parachute firmly.
- Place all the balls on the top and center of the chute.
- The task of one team is to throw the fleas (balls) out.
- And the other team is not to let the fleas out.
- Having a timer would make the game a lot more fun.

Weather Change

- The children have to space out evenly and hold the parachute.
- One among them has to be the weather reporter.
- Decide one type of parachute movement, – flutter, swing, move up and down, etc.
- The weather reporter has to announce the weather conditions and the other players have to move the parachute accordingly.

Color Quiz

This would be a great learning activity for kids in the elementary stages, as it involves a quiz on colors. Any adult, parent, or teacher can conduct this activity.

- Place the parachute evenly on a flat surface.

- The adult must announce a color, and the children have to identify that specific shade on the chute.
- You can make this more fun by asking the kids to jump from one color to the other, instead of walking to it.

Find the Treasure

This activity can help kids learn the names of various objects and improve their gross motor skills.

- Pile up a bunch of things under the parachute.
- The players have to hold up the parachute to the knee level.
- An adult may supervise or conduct this activity. They have to call out the name of one player at a time and assign an object to be retrieved.
- The players have to crawl down the parachute, find the object, and bring it out.
- To make it more challenging, set a time limit in which they have to find and retrieve the object.
